Questions and Answers about the Constitution

Q. What is meant by the term "constitution"?
A. A constitution embodies the fundamental principles of a government. All laws, executive actions, and, judicial decisions must conform to the Constitution.

Q. Does the U.S. Constitution give us our rights and liberties?
A. No, it only guarantees them. The people had all their rights and liberties before they made the Constitution.

Q. Why was the Constitution written?
A. The Constitution was formed, among other purposes, to make the people's liberties secure—secure not only against foreign attack but against oppression by their own government. They set specific limits upon their national government and upon the States, and reserved to themselves all powers that they did not grant.

Q. Are there original ideas of government in the Constitution?
A. Yes, but its main origins lie in centuries of experience in government, the lessons of which were brought over from England and further developed through the practices of over a century and a half in the colonies and early State governments, and in the struggles of the Continental Congress. Its roots are deep in the past; and its endurance and the obedience and respect it has won are mainly the result of the slow growth of its principles from before the days of Magna Carta.

Q. When did the phrase, "The United States of America," originate?
A. The first known use of the formal term "United States of America" was in the Declaration of Independence. Thomas Paine, in February, 1776, had written of "Free and independent States of America." The terms "United Colonies," "United Colonies of America," "United Colonies of North America," and also "States," were used in 1775 and 1776.

Q. Where and when did the deputies to the Constitutional Convention assemble?
